Sylantro Systems Names Aidan Cullen VP of Finance and Chief Financial Officer

Campbell, Calif., Sept. 7, 2006 - Sylantro Systems Corp., the leading supplier of feature servers for hosted VoIP services in carrier networks, today announced that Aidan Cullen has been appointed vice president of finance and chief financial officer, effective immediately. Cullen will be responsible for all financial management of Sylantro's expanding global operations, including treasury and tax, auditing, budgeting and risk management.

Cullen comes to Sylantro with more than 23 years of professional finance experience, at both private start-up and public companies. Prior to joining Sylantro, Cullen served as the CFO at Tasman Networks, where he oversaw Tasman's merger with Nortel Networks, as well as management of finance and administration for the company. Cullen also served as CFO for Monterey Design Systems, a private electronic design automation company.

"Aidan comes to Sylantro with vast experience in domestic and global finance, at private and public companies," said Pete Bonee, president and CEO, Sylantro Systems. "As we continue our expansion around the world, we will look to Aidan's international business and finance expertise to facilitate our global growth."

"This is a very dynamic time in Sylantro's history, particularly with our recent expansion in Europe and Asia, as well as the work we are doing with our global partners," said Aidan Cullen,

CFO, Sylanro Systems. “I look forward to implementing a successful strategy as we approach the next level of growth.”

Cullen’s international experience includes serving in senior finance positions at high tech companies including Digital Equipment Corp., JTS Corporation and Mentor Graphics, both in Europe and in the United States. Cullen earned his MBA from Northeastern University in 1997.
